Punctuation Practice

Let's eat grandpa.
Let's eat, grandpa.

The sentences above mean two entirely different things. A comma certainly makes a lot of difference!

Read the passage below and punctuate it correctly:

almost all of the people in the room the actress the old banker the busy socialite and the senior government officials were shocked when the news came through they had been taken hostage each one of them though it cannot be happening to me the feeling did not sink in immediately the shock was not that they had been taken hostage but the fact that it was a party they had attended as a goodwill gesture to help a friend yet it proved to be the biggest setback of their lives the actress started panicking she paced the room up and down all the while murmuring to herself this agitated the banker one of us will get killed if the woman does not check her emotions he thought

Learning Objective: Add speech to three sentences

1. Dear school friends, " _____ "
2. " _____ " said the teacher
3. The big lady asked, " _____ "
4. And Sally asked, " _____ "
5. " _____ " said the teacher
6. " _____ " asked the old lady
7. My best friend, " _____ "
8. " _____ " the doctor said to the boy

Make up three speech sentences of your own, adding the speech marks in the right place.

Commas and Coordinating Adjectives

Coordinating adjectives are adjectives that describe the same noun and are equal in importance. Ask yourself these questions as a way to determine if the adjectives are coordinating adjectives:

- A. Does the sentence make sense if "and" is added between the adjectives?
 - B. Does the sentence make sense if the adjectives are reversed?
- If the answer is yes to these questions, then they are coordinating adjectives.

Use a comma between coordinating adjectives.

Example 1:

He was a sweet, helpful child. These are coordinating adjectives. The sentence still sounds sensible if it is written as "He was a sweet and helpful child," or "He was a helpful, sweet child."

Example 2:

They lived in an old brick house. These are not coordinating adjectives. The sentence sounds awkward if it is written as "They lived in an old and brick house," or "They lived in a brick old house."

Decide if the adjectives below are coordinating adjectives and check the appropriate box. Rewrite each of the sentences and add commas where they are needed.

1. We went down the long dirt road.
 coordinating adjectives non-coordinating adjectives

2. The quiet respectful class listened to the guest speaker.
 coordinating adjectives non-coordinating adjectives

3. The mighty winter storm howled through the night.
 coordinating adjectives non-coordinating adjectives

4. They liked the fun surprise party.
 coordinating adjectives non-coordinating adjectives

5. The choir sang a happy merry song.
 coordinating adjectives non-coordinating adjectives

Capitalization

Underline the words that should have a capital letter and write each sentence correctly with proper punctuation.

1. I live in detroit, michigan

2. my brother kyle went to visit his aunt in toronto

3. on thanksgiving my cousin angela is coming over

4. mr. anderson is the principal of playland public school

5. canada is a very large country

6. the best day of the week is friday

7. mrs. jackson's birthday is in april

8. do you know that i am going to walmart after school today

9. yesterday i read a book called black beauty

10. did you watch spongebob on TV last night

Ending Punctuation

Name: _____

The ending punctuation you choose to put on a sentence depends on the type of sentence that it is. There are three major kinds of sentences.

- Declarative sentences are making a statement, perhaps to provide information. A period (.) is the proper ending punctuation for a declarative sentence.
- Interrogative sentences are asking a question. A question mark (?) is the proper ending punctuation for an interrogative sentence.
- Exclamatory sentences express emotion or excitement. An exclamation point (!) is the proper ending punctuation for an exclamatory sentence.

- Decide whether the sentence is making a statement, asking a question, or expressing emotion.
- Add the proper punctuation to the end.

- There are 33 students in my class _____
- What time does the class start _____
- The house is on fire _____
- The shop on the corner sells notebooks and paper _____
- Each class will have an assigned time to go to the library _____
- My dad said he is going to double my allowance _____
- Why aren't you coming on the field trip _____
- How long will it take us to get to the museum _____
- I returned the books to the bookcase _____
- Where is the school office _____
- What is your favorite sport _____
- James scored the winning touchdown _____
- Mom is making my favorite meal for dinner _____
- Is Emily your best friend _____
